Consistent with Anthem's status as a political manifesto, Rand also makes reference to those she considers martyrs in the real-life battle against the evils of collectivist society. During his final exposition of his new philosophy, Equality 7-2521 addresses all the martyrs of the transition period, those who died for individualism while the world was just being converted to collectivism.

Ayn Rand continues her theme of independent thinking and personal values in another form. The Golden One, like Equality 7-2521, has been taught that life's meaning lies exclusively in selfless toil for her brothers and sisters. At a conscious level, she accepts the only beliefs she has ever heard. But implicitly, she does not agree.
