~~Foundations Of Contract Law~~

In the last ten years, there has been a revival of interest in the philosophical study of contract law. Much of the discussion relates back to Charles Fried's 1981 claim that contract law is based on the philosophy of promise, generating what is today known as "the contract and promise debate.". This volume taps into this renewal of interest by bringing together leading Principled arguments of contract start from above. They ask first what justifies having a law of contract, and from that derive what the rules of contract law should be. Interpretive arguments begin from below. They examine the contract law we have, then ask what functions and justifications provide the best account of the practice.
